

Argyll and Bute Counselling in Schools service information for Parents and Carers.

Argyll and Bute has a new counselling service available to all children aged 10 years old.

social needs of children/young people. It is estimated that across the UK over 10 million children will struggle with their emotional health. In Argyll and Bute we are committed to supporting our children/young to reach their potential and become; Successful learners, confident individuals, responsible citizens and effective learners.

Our counsellors can offer children/young people a safe and supportive environment to talk over difficult issues in confidence and listen to their views, experiences and feelings without judgement and through building a safe and trusting relationship, characteri the child / young person will be able to speak to their counsellor knowing the content of their sessions will be held in confidence. However should there be any disclosures relating to serious harm to self or others the appropriate steps will be taken and relevant people informed.

consent before a counselling referral is submitted for them.

